Opus Web Technologies Attends COMDEX Spring '98

Houghton, Michigan (April 29, 1998) – Jeffery Primeau and Heath Sundstrom, Co-Founders of Opus Web Technologies, a local Internet Web site design and development business have recently returned from the annual Spring COMDEX computer convention in Chicago.

The convention allowed Opus Web Technologies to participate in powerful platforms for face-to-face interaction with the world's leading information technology companies, products, people and ideas to help in providing solutions for existing and future clientele.

Approximately 100,000 information technology professionals attended the COMDEX Spring '98 Convention where key exhibits and information sessions in specialty areas such as intranets, Internet/Web based ideas and e-Commerce were highly attended.

In addition, both Primeau and Sundstrom had the rare opportunity to see Microsoft's Bill Gates present the opening keynote speech while he and a Microsoft Senior Programmer demonstrated the upcoming release of the new Windows98 operating system due out on June 25th.

Coming back to Houghton with a wealth of information, Opus Web Technologies feels their presence at COMDEX Spring '98 will allow them to expand on their existing services and processes for the development and deployment of quality, professionally built Web sites.

Opus Web Technologies is headquartered at www.opusweb.com.
